The Joy of Reconciliation

Last year, Pope Francis wrote his apostolic exhortation entitled Evangelii Gaudium or the Joy of the Gospel. This work was really the culmination of his heart felt view of the faith in general...that our faith must be marked by the spirit of joy if we have been blessed to have met the Risen Lord in our lives. And to show that these are not just cheap words, we have seen him over the past year really try to implement this concept in all of his ministerial endeavors. For instance, in discussing the goal of the "New Evangelization" he pointed out that Pope John Paul II coined the phrase and began challenging the Church to consider reigniting the missionary spirit. Pope Benedict XVI took things a step further by creating governmental bodies and events within the Vatican superstructure to make this aim of evangelization a reality. And Pope Francis has been given the task/opportunity to implement the vision. Step one according to him?...Discover joy in your own faith journey (or as he put it last year, "Don't be a pickled pepper" [ie a grouchy or somber Catholic]! Learn to present the teachings of your faith in a welcome and joyful way. Pope Francis has urged us to incorporate this joy in our volunteer ministries and in our ecumenical and interreligious dialog as well. And since late last year he has been in discussions with the heads of the Curia in the Vatican, asking how they and how the clergy in general can accomplish their given mission with a greater sense of joy. In other words, from top to bottom, Pope Francis is desperately trying to give the Church a face-lift! And we see that vision through his own example as he carries himself in interviews with the press and as he interacts with the public. He is trying to get each one of us to help present the Gospel in a fresh way with a smile (Same message ...different tone), in the hopes that our mission given by Jesus himself to go out to all the world and tell the good news will bear greater fruit. This is a vision and a dream I hope we can all share in.

Recently we have arrived at just another aspect of that consistent message of joy as we see Pope Francis apply it to the sacrament of reconciliation. This past Thursday, during the reconciliation service held in St. Peter's Basilica, Pope Francis surprised his liturgists by delaying the start of individual confessions when he informed his clergy that he would first like to begin by making his own confession. He had previously revealed that it is his personal practice to go to confession every two weeks so he certainly could have easily arranged to make a confession before the liturgy. However, in this instance, he obviously desired to teach us all by his example. When he finished, about six minutes later, he had this to say to the crowd that was gathered: In the sacrament of reconciliation "God never scolds! He only cheers!". He wants us all to understand that this sacrament should be one that is celebrated with joy as it leads us to new joy. At the end of the service again he reiterated this message, saying "Tell them that our Father is waiting for us, our Father forgives us, and even more he celebrates!" Add that to his message last Fall where the Pope reminded us that we will become tired of asking forgiveness from Him long before He ever tires of forgiving us and you have a very positive and healthy vision of the sacrament of reconciliation.

Unfortunately, it has long been known that the sacrament of reconciliation is the most underutilized in the Church. It has been a great gift left wrapped and unopened by too many. According to the Center for Applied Research of Georgetown University, only 2% of Catholics go to the Sacrament of Reconciliation regularly today and roughly ¾ of all Catholics make use of the sacrament with a frequency ranging from less than once per year to never. According to another source, The National Opinion Research, regular use of the sacrament (defined as monthly) declined from 38% to 17% between 1965 -1975 and has been declining ever since. A Notre Dame/Council of Public Opinion poll has the numbers at 10% who currently go to confession monthly and another 10% of Catholics who have never gone in their lives. Whichever statistics you prefer, clearly the message is the same... Confessions are in sharp decline. Reasons for this decline vary but many include mention of the clergy scandal, a theological belief that the sacrament is not necessary and can be replaced by direct confession to Jesus, and fear or anxiety as reasons why they have stayed away. Whichever the case may be, to those who are keeping a distance from this sacrament of divine mercy I think Pope Francis would say, "You are missing out on a joyful opportunity". As you pray over this I invite you to tune in again next week as I explain in greater detail the great blessings of the sacrament of reconciliation and why I enthusiastically invite you back to it if it has been a while since you have sacramentally celebrated God's gift of mercy.

LITURGY CORNER

“(This Sunday’s) Gospel story of Lazarus is often chosen for funerals, and it is a beautiful one for such an occasion. Proclaiming this gospel at funerals puts into perspective what the Mass of Christian burial is really about. Rather than focusing on the deceased person who has “passed” (a reality more appropriate to reflect on at the Vigil or wake service, where eulogies are the most appropriately given), the Mass is a celebration of risen life – of Jesus’ risen Life and our hope and belief that the deceased person now shares fully in that life. It is for this reason that white is usually the color for funerals – the color we also use to celebrate Easter.” – 2014 Living Liturgy, Liturgical Press, Collegeville, MN)

“I first became an Extraordinary Minister of the Eucharist about 20 years ago. At the time, I was drawn to the thought of serving, but I didn’t feel worthy. I think it was almost two years, and several sermons from our pastor about sharing the gifts and talents that God had given us, before I decided the call was pulling at my heart. My love for the Eucharist has only grown throughout the years of serving. Though I still don’t feel worthy of this service, I feel great joy and peace whenever I am able to bring Christ to others through the Eucharist. Now, this community calls to all of you to consider this ministry. It would bring more to you than you can possibly give. Please give this ministry consideration and expand your love of God and community in the process.” – Janet Scimeca

Please heed the call and become a Eucharistic Minister or Lector! Please call or e-mail abrophy@shcs.org. and schedule a training. Thank you! Ann Brophy, Pastoral Associate

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION NEWS

CLASSES RESUME TODAY....

Lent’s holy drama stirs the senses: the dark purple cloths on the altar; the smell of incense; the Stations of the Cross; the feel of the crucifix wood during veneration, and the soups in the parish hall on Friday nights...all create memories your family will hold in their hearts.

Create more memories with your children this year so that “prayer, fasting, and almsgiving” become more than just big words for “no video games for 40 days.” Turn these elements of Lent into holy experiences for your family. The last two Sundays we explored Prayer and Fasting. Finally we conclude with Almsgiving.....

“For I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me drink, a stranger and you welcomed me, naked, and you clothed me, ill and you cared for me, in prison and you visited me.” – Matthew 25:35-36

Almsgiving is so much more than giving money. During Lent, we can give of ourselves. And we can honor Mary, who gave the world the greatest gift – her son, Jesus. Mary’s “yes” to God to be the mother of Jesus is a reminder that we all have gifts to give.

“Make It Activity” – Dig out a Valentine cookie cutter and make heart-shaped cutout cookies. Make a double batch to share with a lonely neighbor or elderly relative. Before you dig in, pray the Hail Mary in honor of Mary’s gift of her son, Jesus.

“But when you give alms, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing, so that your almsgiving may be secret. And your Father who sees in secret will repay you.” Matthew 6:3-4

Enlist your children’s enthusiasm by asking them to help you plan some sharing for those in need.

Ideas might include:

Mailing a gift card for food or gas to a relative who is struggling with bills.

Giving a Saturday afternoon to pick up trash around the neighborhood.

Delivering bags of dog food to an animal shelter.

Leaving a meal on the doorstep of a neighbor or friend who has lost his or her job.

Religious Education Classes are open to any child from Preschool -- 5th grade every Sunday at 9:50 - 11:15 a.m. at Sacred Heart School. Enrolment remains open throughout the school year. So come and join the fun!!
